THE INSANITY OF JEALOUSY.

When the present management assumed control of THE DISPATCH WE were warned fully of the despicable character of the opposition it would have to contend against. We refused to believe many of the very hard things said of our competitor by reputable citizens of Provo and Utah county; but we have found, as the Queen of Sheba found when she saw all the glories of Solomon, that the "half had not been told" us of the utter meanness, desperate falsehood and the wretched jealonsy of the management of the Enquirer. Its ruthless methods extend to Mormon as well as Gentile. It makes dictated by any love of the truth or deno difference, it has driven its co-Mor- sire that it should prevail, with refermons to suicide and into lankruptcy ence to the visit of the church board, and in the practice of its despicable or for any other or higher purpose modes it has been, wonderfully impartial. young men in Provo at this moment, who, Micawber like, are waiting for "something to turn up." Why not get together, make an outfit and go to prospecting for gold near the city? When they find a lead which will run $8 to the ton, they will get all the help they need to develop it and in one year they may have a property worth a hundred thousand dollars. At least, they will be no worse off than they are today, but will be plus an experience worth much money to them. It seems to us that there is a fine and useful scheme in this brief suggestion. Who will lead in the developing of it?

THE new school bill is not without grave faults and while this is true it has some great virtues. Utah's public sent its accounts against merchants and busi-ness men for advertising and job work be-tween the first and the sixth of each month, attention from the outside world now, attention from the outside world now, and wishes baccounts against it to be proin this case to let well enough severe'y alone. There is no graver, or more important matter interesting the people of Utah than her public school sys tem. Let us do everything possible to forward the system by every possible means. The system is a tall feather in the cap of the young state, and will prove, if it is not injured by future legislation, of vast utility, not only to the boys and girls of Utah, but to all of

AUTUMN ON THE HALF SHELL.

As usual, the leaves are brown,
And all the meads are yellow.
The mosey boughs are bending down
With apples red and mellow. Along the winding orchard wall The breezes bear the thistle, And round the wayside buttonball The quail begins to whistle.

A breezy curtain blurs the sky
And makes it sad and murky,
And now we dream of pumpkin ple
And coutemplate the turkey.
There is a pathos in the air.

A pathos sweet and tender. That fills the leaman with despair And charms the chestnut vender.

The land is purple with the grape
And with the cornetalk tawny,
Which sets the small boy all agape
And grinning like a Pawnee.
The popears's popping with a pop
That's musical and pleasant,

And luscious is the lush perkchop And lush the upland pleasant, Oh, season of the cloth of gold, When all is sweet and stilly, And blooming in the ashen wold

Two Ugly Men.

The Duc de Roouelaure was a man of great ugliness and much humor. One day he met in the street a most unlovelooking Auvergnat, who had some petition or memorial to present at Versailles. He immediately introduced him to Louis XIV, remarking that be was under a special obligation to him. The king granted the favor asked for and then inquired of the duc what might be the nature of the obligation. "But for him, your majesty, I should be the ugliest man in your dominions! I am reminded of Heidegger, the manager of the opera house in the Haymarket when George II was king. One day he laid a wager with the Earl of Chesterfield that he would not find in all London an uglier face than his. After a long search the earl produced a woman of St. Giles' who at first seemed to outvie the manager, but when the latter put on the woman's headgear his superior ugliness was at once admitted, -All the Year Round.
